We appreciate the editorial team pointing out this requirement for uncropped original blot images. During our laboratory routine Western- blot workflow, the PVDF membrane was cut into several strips according to protein molecular weight markers before antibody incubation. Each strip was incubated with one target protein antibody separately, which is why we do not have single full- length uncut membrane covering all protein bands shown in the manuscript figures.

