

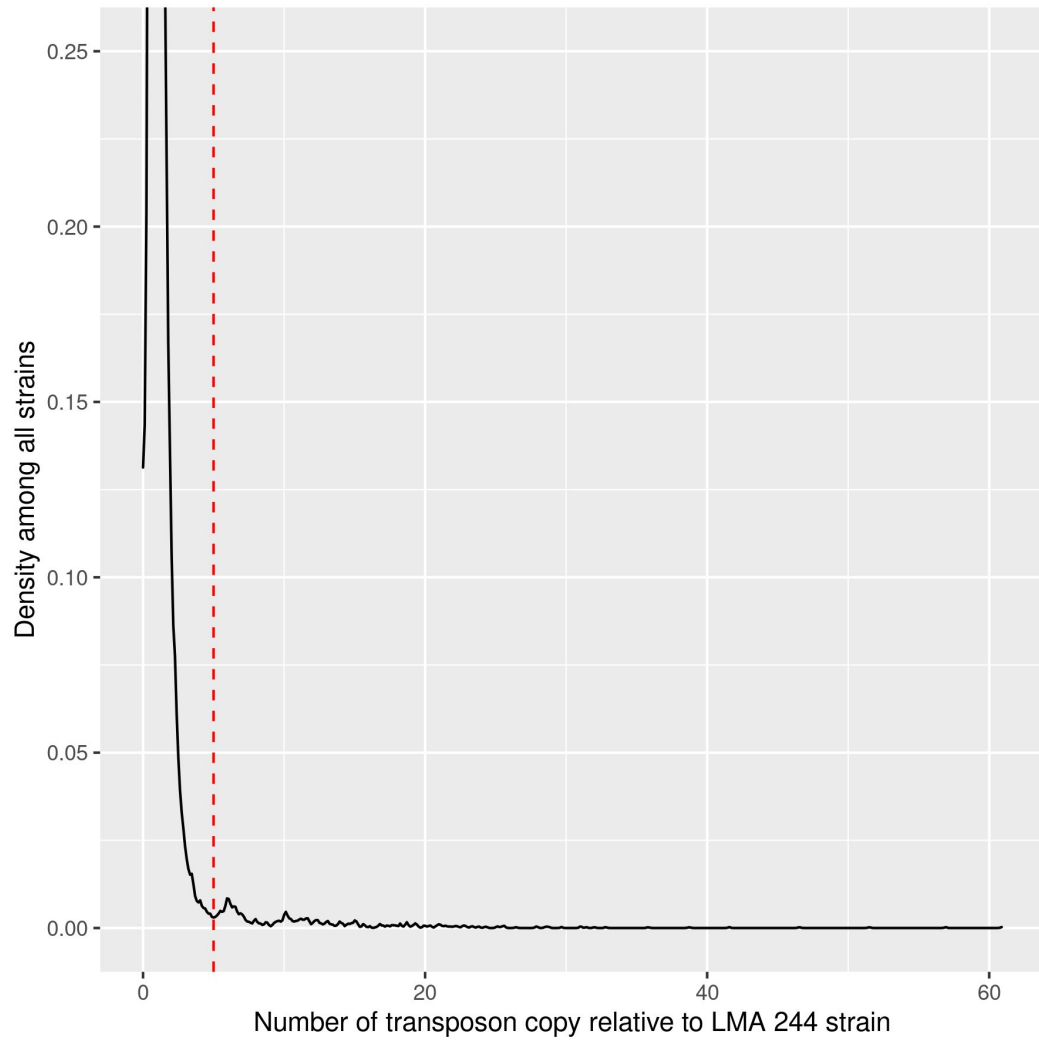

Figure S5: Density of transposable elements copy number relative to the LMA-244 strain

To better show the fat tail distribution, the y-axis (density) was cut at 25%. A red dashed line indicates the threshold of five times more copy number than the LMA-244 strain. This threshold was set to identify repeats expansion related to small peaks on the density curve