

Author's photo and introduction

Yang Zhang, PhD, lecturer, is a teacher at Shanghai Polytechnic University and an engineer with expertise as a senior network programmer (National Vocational Qualification Level Three) and a machine learning engineer (Advanced). His research focuses on logistics systems and related fields.

Yanjun Zhou, an associate professor from Hunan, is currently serving as the Director of the Logistics Management Department and Associate Professor in the School of Economics and Management at Shanghai Polytechnic University. He is also a member of the China Logistics Society and Deputy Director of the Modern Logistics Research Committee of the Shanghai Bar Association. With over ten years of experience in teaching and legal practice, he has taught courses including supply chain management, multimodal transport, bonded logistics, logistics insurance, and logistics law. He has authored textbooks such as "Economic Law", "Supply Chain Management", "Logistics Laws and Regulations", and "Knowledge of Logistics Laws and Regulations". Yanjun has published over 20 papers on topics such as the systematic development of modern logistics law, the construction of the logistics management professional platform and modular talent cultivation model, and the status quo and countermeasures concerning branding in China's express delivery industry.

Hao Hao is a male professor and PhD supervisor. He is also a PhD supervisor at the University of Otago, a world top 1% university in New Zealand. He obtained his master's degree from the School of Management at Fudan University in 2002 and his PhD in Enterprise Management from Shanghai University of Finance and Economics in 2006. From 2010 to 2012, he worked as a postdoctoral researcher in the Management Sciences and Engineering discipline at Fudan University. Since 2008, he has been working at Shanghai Polytechnic University and currently serves as the Vice Dean of the School of Economics and Management, Shanghai Academic Leader in Reverse Logistics, and member of the Academic Committee.

Yufang Fang, female, Ph.D., is a lecturer at Shanghai Polytechnic University. Her research interests lie in the field of robotic logistics.

Zhang Ranran is a female lecturer and PhD holder at Shanghai Second Polytechnic University. Her research focuses on robot logistics.

