

Pathological and Molecular Analysis of Spontaneous Canine Mammary Carcinomas and its Prognostic implications- Journal of Cancer Research and Clinical Oncology

Krithiga Kuppusamy^{1#}, Arathi Rajan¹, Geetu Rose Varghese¹, Neetha Rajan Latha¹, Neethu Krishnan¹, Dipyaman Patra¹, Arathy Warriar¹, Satej Bhusan¹, Narayanan Divakaran Nair² and Priya Srinivas¹.

¹CRP-6, Rajiv Gandhi Centre for Biotechnology, Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala, India.,

² Professor (Retired), Department of Veterinary Pathology, College of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Mannuthy, Thrissur, Kerala, India.

Presently Assistant Professor, Bioscience Research and Training Centre (Kerala Veterinary and Animal Sciences University), Thonnakkal, Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala- 695 317

*Correspondence

Dr. Priya Srinivas

Email: priyasrinivas@rgcb.res.in

ORCID ID: 0000-0003-3872-7128

Supplement 1. Histological phenotype of the CMC based on Rogez et al. 2019
Histological type	Morphological diagnosis	Number of cases (Total=30)
Tubular simple
	Tubular	01
	Tubulopapillary	06
	Tubulotrabeular	02
	Ductal	02
Tubular complex
	Tubular complex	02
	Tubulopapillary complex	02
Solid
	Adenosquamous	03
	Comedocarcinoma	02
	Solid and tubular/ trabecular	10