

- Utilizing user stories from the DevOps software development model to conduct software requirements analysis for a quantum machine learning platform in the NISQ era.
- Completing the software architecture design of quantum machine learning platform by using multi-angle software architecture view.
- We prove that quantum machine learning can be developed efficiently and perform well under the architecture proposed in this paper.