

Highlight

- The annual duration of exposure to the risk of air pollution by aerosols runs from November to June.
- January is positioned as the month with the highest concentration of aerosols in the atmosphere.
- Aerosols carry potentially toxic chemical substances that can impair respiratory function in humans.
- The risk of Maroua's population being affected by non-carcinogenic and carcinogenic diseases is low, if not acceptable.