

Comparing Grief-Informed Texts to Other Types of Bereavement Support in the United Kingdom

Welcome

This study is being conducted as a part of a PhD dissertation in International Psychology at The Chicago School in Chicago, Illinois, USA, and in partnership with Sue Ryder. The study compares grief-informed texting to other types of bereavement support.

You've been asked to take part in this survey because you've enrolled in Grief Coach, a grief-informed texting support service offered by Sue Ryder.

The first few questions of this survey will see if you qualify for this study. If you qualify, you will be asked to provide informed consent, answer questions about yourself and your loss, and rate your experience with grief-informed texting and other types of grief support.

You will also be asked to answer questions related to your loss and well-being.

This survey takes approximately 15 minutes.

Thank you for your participation.

Informed Consent

Principal Investigator: Melissa Lunardini
IRB-FY23-592

Study Title: Comparing Grief-Informed Texts to Other Types of Bereavement Support in the United Kingdom

I am a student at The Chicago School. This study is being conducted as a part of my dissertation requirement for a Ph.D. in International Psychology.

I am asking you to participate in a research study that compares grief-informed texting to other types of bereavement support. You will be asked to complete a short survey rating your experience with grief-informed texting and other types of grief support. You will also be asked to answer questions related to your loss and well-being. This will take approximately 15 minutes.

This may cause emotional distress or upset or the feeling that your confidentiality may be at risk. Although you may not directly benefit, it will be valuable for the field of international psychology to understand how grief-informed texting compares to other types of support. If comparable, this could be a scalable way for people to get bereavement support.

Purpose: The purpose of this study is to understand people's experiences with grief-informed texts and other types of bereavement support in terms of availability and helpfulness. The study will also seek to understand how you are coping with loss and your well-being.

Procedures: For this study, you will be asked to complete a 15-minute survey rating your level of satisfaction with grief-informed texting and other forms of support. You will also be asked some questions about your well-being and your loss. Upon completion, you will be invited to enter a random drawing for one of 25 £20 international Visa gift cards. All survey data will be de-identified and stored in compliance with GDPR requirements.

Risks to Participants: Completing a survey poses very little risk for participants. The risks of this study may include mild emotional distress or upset, concerns around data privacy, and protection and breaches of confidentiality. To minimize emotional distress or upset, participants will be provided with additional resources, and the principal investigator, Melissa Lunardini, will remain available via email at mlunardini@ego.thechicagoschool.edu for additional support. A Zoom call will be made an option if preferred over email.

To minimize a breach of data privacy and protection and a confidentiality breach, all data will be de-identified and stored on a password-protected computer that requires two-factor authentication to access data stored in SurveyMonkey and in the data analysis software SPSS database. The SurveyMonkey survey data will be collected over a secure HTTPS connection. SurveyMonkey maintains the industry's best security standards across the globe. All identifying information will be removed during data cleaning. Aggregate data will be used when publishing and distributing the results of the study.

Benefits to Participants: Your participation contributes to the scientific knowledge that benefits society. By volunteering to take part in this research study, you will contribute to the knowledge of how we can improve bereavement care across the United Kingdom. Volunteering can be a helpful way to cope with grief. Studies have shown that volunteering can improve mental well-being after loss.

Alternatives to Participation: Participation in this research is voluntary. You can opt out of this study at any time and request that your information be deleted from the database per your rights under GDPR. Your participation or nonparticipation will not affect your relationship with Sue Ryder or your ability to access other types of bereavement support.

Confidentiality: During this study, information will be collected about you for this research. This includes some information about you and your loss. To minimize a breach of confidentiality, the PI will maintain exception data collection and storage practices. Your data will not contain any personal identifiers and will be stored securely on the PI's personal computer, which is password-protected and requires two-factor authentication. Aggregate data will be used when publishing and distributing the results of the study. The American Psychological Association requires that data be stored for five years; this is also a standard practice across the United Kingdom.

Your data may be used for future research or distributed to another researcher without your consent. However, information that would identify you will be removed.

Your research records may be reviewed by federal agencies responsible for protecting human subjects participating in research, including the Office of Human Research Protections (OHRP) and by representatives from The Chicago School Institutional Review Board, a committee that oversees the research, and by Sue Ryder's ethics committee.

Questions/Concerns: If you have questions related to the procedures described in this document, please contact:
