INTRODUCTION

You are invited to participate in a cross-sectional study conducted by researchers from a different faculty medicine. The aim of this study is to assess the prevalence and severity of burnout among surgical residents and to evaluate the impact of heavy workload on their emotional well-being, professional performance, and personal life. Additionally, the study seeks to identify potential factors contributing to burnout and explore possible support mechanisms within surgical training programs.

Study Procedure

If you choose to participate, you are required to complete all sections of the questionnaire thoroughly.

Confidentiality and security

Your response will be kept confidential and anonymous. Your data will be stored securely, and only authorized researchers will have access.

Your identity will remain confidential.

Consent to participate:

Upon reading the consent statement above, by proceeding to complete the questionnaire, you are providing voluntary agreement to participate in the study and granting consent for the use of your anonymous data for research purposes.

We appreciate your voluntary participation in this study.

Thank you
