An online survey of users of Cancer Council Victoria's telephone information and support service (13 11 20) and their preferences about the service

As someone who has recently used Cancer Council Victoria's telephone cancer information and support services (13 11 20), you are being asked to participate in this research study about your preferences for the service. This study uses a scenario-based online survey to see which service features are important to users and understand how valuable this service is.

- This work is part of a larger project looking at the value of telephone cancer information and support services.

Dr Ann Livingstone of Deakin University is conducting the study with Cancer Council Victoria.

- Participation in this study is voluntary.
- If you agree to participate, you will complete a single online survey asking questions about you and your preferences for different 13 11 20 service features.
- The questions will take approximately 20 minutes.

What's in the survey?

Firstly, we'll show you some questions about what features of 13 11 20 important to you. These questions are about existing or hypothetical (may not currently exist) features of the service.

For each question, you choose the response you prefer from the three options provided.

You will then see seven scenarios, each with two hypothetical services, 'Service 1' and 'Service 2'.

- For each scenario, please select which service you prefer.
- The survey will start with an example =.
- Each scenario is unique, though some appear similar. Please read through each scenario carefully before making your decision.
- In each scenario, the dollar amount expressed is a measure of the importance of this service. After completing your seven scenarios, you will then complete a few questions about yourself (age, gender, health information, etc.)

The participant information statement tells you more about the research study and can be read using this link: <<Link to pdf of full Participant Information Sheet>>

If you agree to participate, please click the 'Next page' button to begin.
