

How the HATI project supported HIV staging and monitoring laboratory tests at primary care level

A courier service during the intervention phase facilitated transport of blood samples taken at participating primary care facilities to the processing laboratory at Level A hospitals; thus, HATI participants receiving treatment at primary care were not required to travel to external laboratories for CD4 counts or HIV VL monitoring.